dorsed by the business men of this city, for a Union meeting on Wednesday. The I nion as Camfortable as Could be Expected.

Our dispatches contain various prescriptions for the Union: irritants, counterirritants, anodynes, cathartics and emetics. The poor old Union is like to fare badly with all this physicing. The South Carolina Secession Convention has broken out into the small-pox. The crisis of the disease is always thought to be over when it becomes eruptive; therefore, we may reasonably expect that South Carolina will be more comfortable soon. A tendency to eruptions is constitutional with her, Thurlow Weed proposes to take slavery out of politics, and transfer the irrepressible conflict to the people of the Territories, and let them scratch each other's eyes out. Seward is supposed to be implicated. Since the election there is no further use for slavery in politics, and it is to be turned out to grass in the wilderness.

Ben Wade has applied a blister to the diseased part of the Union. This treatment used to be regular, but has given way in randern times to mild practice, which relies chiefly on nursing.

Prepare to Glow.

The readers of the Commercial were yesterday notified to prepare to glow this morning, by the following "sensational," announcement, quadruple-leaded:

"We will publish complete, in to-morrow's paper, the brave and spiendid speech for the Union, made by Charles Anderson, Esq., at the Alamo, Texas, to a meeting called by recessionists. It is a speech that will thrill the heart of the nation. The man whose blood will not glow in its fiery eloquence is constituted at a result. constitutionally a reptile, and fit for

The man who does not glow, may know thereby that he is constitutionally a reptile, and fit for treason, which is the constitutional habit of reptiles.

Innamuch as the Guzette readers had their glow yesterday, they will have cooled down to reptilian torpidity by the time the Commercial reaches them; and will, therefore, be fit for treason, unless they can "get their second wind"-to use a pugilistic phrase. This glowing, twenty-four hours after time, would be rather a protracted heat.

The Commercial had better make a virtue of its slowness-as it is about the only virtue it has and charge the Gazette with putting the speech in type on Sunday. When papers grow stupid they usually fall back on orthodoxy.

We have a discovery in natural history. Reptile will hereafter be defined thus: A featherless biped, constitutionally inclined to treason, with a proclivity for stratagems and

A Short Sermon. "True religion is to visit the widow and the fatherless, and keep himself unspotted from the world." The word translated "visit," means to relieve, comfort and prowide for. To "keep himself unspotted from the world," is not to say, "stand apart, for I am holier than thou;" but to keep himself unspotted from sin. This is the test by which feith will be tried at the great judgmeat. There are no "articles" there. "1 was slok and in prison and ye visited me drunk and disorderly and abusing his wife, not," will be the test; not, "ye did not pro- was yesterday fined 35 and costs. fers my thirty-nine articles."

By this may every one try the spirit that is in him. If he do this, he may know his faith will do to travel on. If he do it not, he may know his faith is not a saving one.

The present time has increased the demanda of all kinds upon the benevolent. These are occasions to prove one's faith. If rightly improved these afflictions thus work out a far more exceeding and external weight of glory. Mea are not now called to martyrdom for their faith; at least Christions are not-unless they get into the wrong latitude; but the opportunities for its triumphs are by no means curtailed. Every one has them in his own sphere; and faithfulness is just as much required of him as if the heathen were raging against him with fire and faggot.

Men talk of "taking up their cross;" yet there is no crucifixion now-a-days; and taking up the cross without that is a cheap play. But there is a way laid down whereby they may know if their hearts are acceptable to Christ; that is if they love the brethren. And the brethren are all mankind; especially the needy and they that have no helper; not the brother who fences up his piety in a five-hundred-dollar damask-cushioned pew, and prays for poor sinners.

As the profound Bunsby would observe, the "bearin' of this here observation lies in the application of it." We began with the purpose of exhorting to works of benevolence and charity, but we have gone on incontinently with some general remarks, from which we conclude that we have been instigated or inspired. We suppose that every good influence is inspiration.

A great many of our own citizens are not aware of the extent of the regular benevolent operations in this city. Yet, though comparatively unobtrusive, they put to shame the State benevolent institutions, which we are accostomed to boast of as the great achievement of our civilization. While our city penal code is only an aggravation of the evil, and our House of Refuge but little more than a preparatory course for the Penitentiary, and our public provision for the poor seems but to trifle with the wants of the really needy, there are private benevolent associations growing up among us at a rate which promises in the future a time when no destitute person shall be without relief, and no abandoned one without a refuge. There are the results of individual effort and devotion to the work; of a just recognition of individual responsibility, which does not put its duties upon the State, county or city, nor regard them as done because these bodies have made some public institutions. Every man has a work to do. He can not shift it on God. Is there any hungry, cold, destitute, sick and in prison, that he can help, that is a work for him to do. God has provided enough for all. It will be of no use for one to appropriate abundance and luxury to himself, and then call on God to help his needy brother. The most athletic feats of praying would have no power in that case. When he has put his shoulder to the wheel and performed him own duty, then let him come up to prayer, and he will find himself inspired with great filled in him the Scripture promise, that "the fervent, effectual prayer of the righteous man availeth much."

THE Southern Confederacy, of Atlanta, Ga., has been executed by the sheriff. Unbappy omen! Most unpatriotic sheriff. Can such sheriffs be, on Southern soil, and overcome Southern Confederacies like a summer's cloud without our special wonder? The Southern Confederacy originated the system of classification of Northern merchants into White and Black Lists, Its editor, Dr. Hamblaton, was the Linneus of the New York dealers in the Southern trade, classifying them as white or black, according to their politics. He lived for some time on this branch of natural history, at a New York hotel, and astoniched his stomach with good victuals and free drinks, and exchanged his Atlanta slop garments for good clothes, But this was too bright to last long. And now he's gone. The luxurious living of the North only relaxed his system and unfitted it to endure its normal condition. Perhaps he has returned to the practice of his profession. If so, he will sufficiently avenge his own wrongs on those who failed to support his Southern Confederacy, and there is no need of our assistance.

[cosmunicated.j Capitation and Decapitation—Councilman Johnston's Reply to a Request to Resign. To Mesers. Martin, Vancant, Keeler, Hukill end Esteil, Committee appointed at a Meet-ing held Saturday evening, December 15, 1800, in the Fourth Ward;

Gentlemen-Having been the recipient of several very flattering notices for the past few days, which emanated from very peculiar sources, I shall not attempt to reply to you explaining my position, but will defer it for a few days. I will therefore very briefly reply to your very extraordinary request:

1. Being possessed of Democratic principals.

1. Being possessed of Democratic principles. I recognize the right of instruction, but not of dictation, by my constituents, and having received instructions from numerous of my constituents to vote as I did, bosides it being my honest conviction, I feit justified in my vote.

From the purport of the resolutions I should infer that the second one was the one intended to apply to my case, as it requests my resignation. If it had been the only resolution, I think the object of the originators of the movement would have been accomplished, as it is well known that the present divided state of the Democracy of the Fourth Ward would render the return of the Fourth Ward would render the return of a Democratic representative to Council extremely doubtful.

I find there was one resolution omitted, which was intended that, in case of my non-compliance with either of the requests. I was to be notified I could not live in the Fourth Ward; but I as am no secessionist, I would have unhesitatingly declined the very modest request. I presume it is fresh in the memories of most of you, the Committee of One Hundred, appointed to request the Mayor of the city to resign his seat for performing an act of duty his judgment dictated. It is well known how said meeting was gotten up and how many are there now was gotten up and how many are there nov would justify the indignity then offered to the Mayor?

the Mayor?
Such, I think, is a fair illustration of the present case, the meeting being gotten up and conducted without any intimation to me. But knowing full well you may think wiser and better in the future, I suppose I must pardon you for the recent notoricty you have brought me into.

Instructions being democratic, dictation autogratic, and, as I consider I received the former previous to my late vote, and the latter from you, I am compelled to decline your requests. ng inherited true Democratic principles, I have no hesitation in assuming the

NEWPORT NEWS.

Walestire Aureden, for whipping his "bet-ter holf," was fined $30 and required to give bonds in the sum of $100 to keep the peace. Tim Ryan, for a like offense, was also fined $30, and compelled to give security in the sum of $100 to keep the peace. Wife-whipping appears to be a mania in this city.

Luke Cartwright, for cutting a man's coat with a knife, was fixed $15 and costs. Luke was on a spree, and could find no better em-ployment.

AN ATTORNEY PLACED HORS DU COMBAT.

An Attorney Placer Hors du Combat.
Last evening, about half-past six o'clock, two well-known citizens, a professor and an attorney, engaged in a fight in the vicinity of York and Belleview-streets. The major lawyer was knocked out of time by the professor, and called lustily for help.

The effects of the battle are one black eye and a bruised head, on which there are marks of science and a poker. "Knowledge is power," which, together with some of the Benicia Boy's science, accounts for the Major's punishment. The affair grew out of an unpalatable epithet applied to the Professor by the lawyer, which the former gentleman did not relish, and which resulted in placing the lawyer hors du combat.
